

Waveland zoning board to recommend against Herlihey Street request

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Waveland Planning and Zoning Board has voted not to recommend a rezoning for a proposed Herlihey Street business.

The business, proposed by Mrs. Charles Washington, is a sweet shop and gameroom for neighborhood children on the site once occupied by Welch's Grocery.

The old grocery store property was once zoned commercial but reverted to residential after the business remained unoccupied for more than six months.

Washington had attempted to have the zoning changed back to commercial once before, when both the zoning board and the board of aldermen, which makes the final decision, turned it down.

Neighbors had complained and were particularly concerned about how the business might affect a nearby church if it remained open during church hours.

She said she had worked out the problem of business hours with the church pastor and presented a petition from people she said favored the shop.

Two residents of the neighborhood, Edna Summers and Eddie White, appeared to oppose the rezoning request.

In other business, Michael Pernicelli and Charles Johnson appeared before the board.

Pernicelli owns property on Faith Street that he had rezoned last year in order to build an auto repair shop.

At present, the property is fenced and a number of cars are parked behind the fence, but no repair shop has been constructed.

Johnson asked for a clarification of the zoning, which is a Commercial-3 classification, because he does not believe it will allow Pernicelli to operate a junk yard.

He said that the cars are neatly parked, that the grass is mowed and that the fence is in good repair, but contends the property is still a junk yard.

Pernicelli stated that many of the cars have been sold and that about half still run. They are being stored until buyers collect them or until buyers are found.

After discussing the matter with Board Attorney Lucien Gex, the board members decided to notify Pernicelli of non-compliance.

The board's recommendations will be presented to the board of aldermen at their May 5 meeting. The zoning board meets again at 5 p.m. May 25.

Hancock School Board appoints new member

The Hancock County School Board voted Tuesday to appoint Wayne King of Dedeaux as Beat 3 school board member.

"This was a very difficult decision to make because we had so many fine applicants but we unanimously agreed on King's selection," according to Frank Miller, board president.

"The board believes he will be a very easy person for all of the members to work with as a group," Miller added.

He also said King's experience in construction will be a particular asset to the board.

King has an associate's degree in science from University of New York and retired from the U.S. Navy.

Miller stated King does not plan to run in the November election and with his selection the board did not show any partiality to a potential candidate.

Seven candidates were interviewed to fill the position vacated by the recent resignation of School Board Member Tommy Shaw.

The Hancock County Port & Harbor Commission's First Salute to Business & Industry on Wednesday was very successful.

The event in cooperation with the Hancock County Board of Supervisors and Hancock County Chamber of Commerce is the type of function we need in our county in order to show our business and industry leaders how much they are appreciated.

It was good to see so many people at the event and everyone should be commended for their attendance.

One of the big reasons for the success of the Salute to Industry & Business was the joint effort by all persons involved.

So we now also fire a salute to all of those who made the function a big success.

The officers and directors of the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce received a very good tour of Hancock Medical Center on Tuesday night.

The chamber's directors held their monthly meeting at the Hancock Medical Center prior to the tour conducted by Mary Perkins, director of public relations.

The directors were impressed with the many new services which are now offered at the local hospital in addition to the fine facility we now have.

In case you haven't had an opportunity of visiting the new hospital, there will be many opportunities during National Hospital Week which will be celebrated the second week of May.

Tours are also available from now through Hospital Week.

We have a very fine medical facility and should all be proud of it and visit the hospital so you can tell your friends.

TRANSPORTATION RANKS HIGH ON STATE SPENDING LISTS

With the approval during the 1987 Legislative session of a $1.6 billion highway construction program, Mississippians have been attuned to the condition of our highways during the past year. In addition, our state will spend another one-half billion dollars for roadways not included in the massive highway construction program next year. These figures indicate that Mississippi is in the mainstream of the nation when it comes to support for highways.

Unfortunately, we do not focus on transportation needs as a whole like most other states. Our focus seems to be singularly on highways, without the much needed coordination between transportation programs that include airways, ports, mass transit, waterways, and railways. I still support a Department of Transportation and will continue to encourage the establishment of one in Mississippi.

A recent issue of the State Government News, a publication of the Council of State Governments, cited a series of surveys in the transportation area that I would like to share with you. The Council found that transportation ranked third in overall state spending behind only education and public welfare.

The article recalled a Newsweek survey of the nation's Governors that identified state government funding needs. The Governors ranked transportation third in the field of six needs areas, behind health care and welfare. But the Governors also ranked transportation as third highest in the area where progress has been made in state government.

A Council of State Governments survey that included responses from 40 states ranked transportation as 11th in priority among 33 key issues facing state policy makers. This result compared with a similar survey in 1985, that ranked transportation as the 8th highest need.

When the Council of State Governments surveyed only transportation decision-makers, they ranked the needs in this area as funding, hazardous waste transportation, safety, organization, insurance and motor carriers.

As you can see from the results of all these surveys, Mississippi is pretty well on target with our spending and the identification of transportation problems. I hope that we can expand our focus in the future to include all transportation, instead of just roadways. A coordinated approach to our transportation needs will enhance our chances and opportunities for economic development.

Loyalty Day observance May 1

The first of May is Loyalty Day and as such it is a day filled with activities designed to involve the community in an overt display of loyalty to flag and country. Therefore, every loyal citizen should eagerly participate in the festivities in an effort to make this Loyalty Day the best observance ever held.

The local observance is scheduled at Theodore Price Post VFW in Bay St. Louis at 7:30 p.m. Friday.

Loyalty Day has become a tradition with the Veterans of Foreign Wars. With passage of Public Law 85-529 on July 18, 1958, the VFW won a long hard battle to have Loyalty Day approved by Congress. However, this day does not belong to the VFW alone; it belongs to all Americans.

Most Americans have heard the quote "Ask not what your country can do for you - ask what you can do for your country." This is a sound principle to live by in a country such as ours, where the government is elected by the people and where the public is expected to participate in the governing process.

In these times of global political turbulence, Americans should pause and ask themselves, "What have we done and what are we doing now to demonstrate to the world just how we feel about our country?"

After all, ours is a country that has held high the beacon of liberty and asked nothing of the other nations except that they send to her, in the words of Emma Lazarus emblazoned on the Statue of Liberty, their "huddled masses yearning to breathe free."

Ours is a country that has taken the abstract ideal of "Freedom and Justice for All" and made it into a way of life.

We must pledge ourselves to maintain a free society in which loyalty is always encouraged and respected. For, without loyalty the United States, the world's best hope for a future blessed with freedom, cannot long survive. And, if we fail, the flame of freedom will diminish and fade forever.

So, join in and become a part of the Loyalty Day Celebrations. Let the world know that Americans are behind their country and that America because of this is still a strong vibrant nation.

LEADERS APPRAISE LOYALTY
Loyalty is the freedom torch passed to a new generation of our young citizens - they who answer the call to duty.

A SOLUTION TO TODAY'S MATH PROBLEMS

Word has come down that Mississippi high school students are having problems with math and a committee has been named to try to find the solution. Already, several suggestions have been made as to the most effective means of dealing with the problem.

There is an easy answer. Just find a few more math teachers like Christine Boyd Stokes, now a member of the math faculty at the University of Mississippi, but formerly a math instructor at Greenwood High School.

As a high school math instructor a few years ago, Dr. Stokes—then Miss Boyd—taught algebra, geometry, solid geometry, and trigonometry from tenth through 12th grades from her third floor corner classroom.

There was disciplined classroom work, with almost daily exercises at the blackboard. There was extensive homework, followed by at least weekly, if not daily, tests.

There was a student who had made a decision to drop out of the math curriculum at the junior class level, but the teacher thought he needed solid geometry and trigonometry, senior level courses. So she encouraged, actually insisted, on his enrollment in those courses with the commitment that she would be available as often as she was needed.

She was needed during study hall periods, before and after class, before and after school, and even, at times, in the hallways between classes.

The student agonized through hours of homework and in preparation for frequent examinations. The year came to a close and the student who had made a decision to drop out of the math curriculum finished near the top of his class.

He was an honor student because Miss Boyd had made him one.

This is not a criticism of today's math teachers, but rather a strong suggestion that a few more Christine Boyds could solve many of today's math problems.

Eyes on Mississippi

By Bill Minor

JACKSON—Mississippi Governor faces of the past have been brought back to life by a few years back. "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum."

And, if they haven't wound up at all like they started. Something has happened to alter events or create a person who has swayed voters to do something different than they might have initially.

The most memorable case is perhaps 1975 when the race was thought to be between then Lt. Gov. William Winter and Maurice Dantin, the Columbia attorney with the good political face who was making a long-awaited gubernatorial bid.

Dantin had gone along with a low-profile campaign up until the last two weeks of the first primary when he surprisingly jumped on the well-respected Winter over the latter's earlier public bond attorney connections.

Suddenly Dantin's political stock dropped, elevating into the runoff picture Cliff Finch, whose antics of driving bulldozers and carrying around a workman's lunch pail were thought comical. On the fringes of that 1975 race was John Arthur Eaves who was trying to cash in or looking and sounding like George Wallace.

What eventually became clear was that Finch had rekindled the old populist spirit and fashioned a little-man coalition of whites and blacks that inundated Winter.

Four years earlier, in the 1971 race, then Lt. Gov. Charles Sullivan was the odds-on favorite to take it all, probably in the first primary because of a field of little known faces, among them a former DA named Bill Waller, and also a state Senator named Ed Pittman.

His advisers dressed up Sullivan, the most dramatic Mississippi public speaker of the past half-century, in a white suit and had him saying nothing and remaining aloof from the people, particularly blacks who had just become a voting force.

Sullivan promptly became labeled "the man from Glad" after a current TV commercial and his promised-black support failed to materialize. In what is still considered the major upset of the last three decades, Waller bested Sullivan in the runoff with black and poor white votes providing the key margin.

There is no real script about how the 1987 Democratic gubernatorial race is supposed to come out, but the interesting thing is that four of the main figures in this year's remarkable lineup were principals in either the 1971 or 1975 races, namely, Waller, Dantin, Eaves and Pittman.

State Auditor Ray Mabus, who came on quickly as a whiz kid of state government adds a new dimension to the political equation. But he may also suffer if his build up is compared with that of Gov. Bill Allain whose hot pistol as attorney general turned into a pea-shooter as governor.

Then there will be Mike Sturdivant, the wealthy planter-businessman from Glendora who was thought to have sworn off politics after making a disappointing, high-cost campaign in 1983.

This time, Waller comes back in the role of the former governor who brought Mississippi into the company of "New South" governors during the early 1970s, and who now hopes to accomplish what a recalcitrant legislature would not let him achieve in his earlier term.

Atty. Gen. Ed Pittman now comes into this race as a three-time state office holder and a much better-known political figure. He also comes equipped with perhaps the sharpest tongue on the political circuit and the possible nemesis of his rival, Mabus.

They figure to get into a row as to who has been the most responsible for getting county officials to straighten up.

Dantin comes back with the same good political face, a rather governor-like aura, and also probably the candidate most favored by county courthouse politicians.

Then Eaves, now with a new hair-do and looking less like George Wallace with no hint of the old segregationism, and looking very much like the champion of the little man that catapulted the late Cliff Finch a decade or so ago.

The question most asked is: can Mabus, the young phenom on the political scene hold the early pace he had set to get out from? There are also questions about his youthful appearance, that he does not look gubernatorial enough.

Certainly the description of "charismatic" given Mabus by one of my fellow columnists hardly seems in order. Now Charlie Sullivan, the dramatic speaker, that's charismatic. In fact, I wouldn't bestow charisma on any of the present candidates.

If his announcement rally is a good indicator, Mabus has surrounded himself with a lot of button-down collar, polyester-sleeves who are not known for winning political campaigns in Mississippi.

Recent polls incidentally have indicated that young people, between the ages of 18 and 30, who could make up a large chunk of the state's voting strength don't because they aren't registered or don't vote.

What is perhaps difficult for the average citizen to understand is that three lawyers who have very good practices - Waller, Dantin and Eaves - are willing to give up much higher incomes to become a $43,000-a-year governor of this state.

After all, there must still be a desire for public service in this state. No doubt, the fact that a governor can now be elected to two terms in succession and have a better chance to put through a program has something to do with it.

Handicapped parking spaces designed to aid needy only

Dear Sir:

I write this letter to bring attention to the problems of area handicapped persons compounded by able-bodied citizens' refusal to observe handicapped parking zones.

It is my feeling that the city police should crack down on violators of such ordinances that prohibit vehicles without handicapped tags from parking in these zones.

I have witnessed one car after another pull into the zone in front of a local laundromat while I was doing my wash.

Upon pointing out the offense, many people take a defensive stand to their "right" to park there.

Many say, "I'll just be a minute." They don't realize that that a minute they take could just be the minute a crippled person needs to park.

In an attempt to bring to light this shameful situation, I have had printed a "warning" to place on the car window of violators. I will be placing these reminders in area stores to be picked up and used by patrons who feel the way I do. I could use help in this sometimes monumental task of discouraging the warnings and would appreciate the help of anyone reading this.

Contact the Vocational Rehabilitation Service at 444 E. Main St. to pick up "warning" signs. I am not sure if the signs are in the back of sign is a list of the merchants that observe handicap or distances. I hope people in our fine country will think about this and become involved in helping to inform others about handicapped parking zones. I think the people here are the finest I've ever met. And the only people that park in these zones are people who are unfamiliar with the reason they are there.

I believe that once all of our citizens are aware of these zones, we will have no more problems. Or, am I just fooling myself? Come on, Hancock County, let's show what we are made of.

Sincerely yours,
Mark Mason

Cosmetics your skin

Q: I've been using a cosmetic cream for a while and it's been great. I'm looking for a new one. What do you recommend?

A: Cosmetics by most manufacturers are relatively new. Most are made of synthetic materials.

One ingredient that is often used is parabens. Parabens are synthetic preservatives that are used to keep cosmetics from spoiling.

Although parabens are synthetic, they are not harmful to the skin. However, some people are allergic to parabens.

If you are allergic to parabens, you should look for cosmetics that are parabens-free.

There are many parabens-free cosmetics available. Look for them in the natural or organic section of the store.

What's The Law? - parental rights and responsibilities

EDITOR'S NOTE: This article is one of a series on the law prepared by the American Bar Association and presented by the Hancock County Bar Association in conjunction with the annual celebration of Law Day USA, Friday, May 1. See accompanying story on special events scheduled in Hancock and Harrison counties in observance of Friday's Law Day.

Parents enjoy the traditional right to control their children and decide how they will be cared for, clothed, sheltered and educated. This right is based on the assumption that parents act in the child's best interest.

While recent laws have followed the trend to allow children more rights, at the same time they have tried to uphold parental authority and the integrity of the family unit. Since Law Day was first celebrated on May 1, 1957, there has been a generation of progress. Rights have been expanded for most Americans, including children. There is now the law now stands concerning many rights of children and parents.

Q: What are parents' legal obligations to their minor children?
A: Parents are required to support their minor children and provide them with food, clothing, shelter, medical care and education.

Fathers are held primarily responsible for this support; however, if fathers provide inadequate support, mothers are held responsible for making up the difference.

The state can bring criminal action against a father for non-support of his children. The type of support the state will require of him will depend on his financial circumstances.

Q: What does the law say about parental discipline and control?

A: A child is required to obey his parents if he or she is under their custody. This includes parental rules about a child's choice of friends, doing, curfew, smoking, and other behavior. A court will support parents who ask for help in enforcing their rules.

The law permits reasonable physical punishment of children by parents as part of the parental role in maintaining discipline and control. However, if real or serious injury is caused as a result of unreasonable physical punishment, this is considered a child beating and is against the law.

Q: What rights do parents have to educate their children according to their religious beliefs?

A: Several State Supreme Courts have held in individual cases that the state board of education cannot compel a religious school to obey its regulations concerning coursework, texts, and teacher certification. Rather, religious schools can design their own curricula and use their own texts based on their interest in religious training.

In 1980, the Supreme Court upheld the right of parents who were members of a strict Protestant sect to educate their children at home, as they had been doing for several years, although neither of them were certified teachers. The parents made religious training an important part of their children's education, training that was not available in the local school system.

Q: What right do parents have to restrict their children's religious affiliation?

A: This question has been under debate by several state legislatures. Some legislatures are considering the passage of laws that would allow the courts to name temporary guardians for people who have been recruited by religious cults, whether they be minors or adults.

Other state legislatures have rejected such bills on the grounds that they infringe on a person's First Amendment right to freedom of religion.

Because of the constitutional issue involved, courts rather than legislatures may provide the answer to this question on an individual basis.

In 1980, a federal court awarded a father $30,000 in damages when he brought a lawsuit against the Unification Church contending that the church had "deprived him of his natural parent right" by recruiting his daughter when she was a minor.

Q: Are parents responsible for a traffic accident that their child causes?

A: In most cases, yes. When a minor applies for a driver's license, a person who has reached the age of majority, usually the parent, must act as his sponsor.

That sponsor is responsible for any automobile accidents that the minor is involved in until the minor reaches the age of 18.

In some states, in addition to this responsibility, the sponsor can have the minor's license cancelled, with notice given to the State Motor Vehicle Department.

Q: Do parents hold any liability for contracts made by their minor children?

A: Parents only hold liability for their children's contracts if they have co-signed a contract, for example, an apartment lease or a credit purchase.

In most cases, it is a merchant's or landlord's decision whether to accept a contract from a minor without a parent's co-signature.

Q: Are parents responsible for damages by their minor children?

A: Parents are responsible for torts committed by their minor children. This liability varies from state to state.

For example, they may be held responsible for damages caused by vandalism or mischief, destruction of school property, and destruction of private property.

This liability may entail financial responsibility to a certain dollar amount, for example, $5,000.

Q: May a physician perform an abortion on a minor or treat a minor for pregnancy or venereal disease without the consent of the minor's parents?

A: Laws concerning the medical care of minors vary widely from state to state. Six states (Louisiana, Maine, Maryland, Montana, Nevada, Utah) require doctors to inform parents before they perform an abortion on a minor child.

The Utah law recently was upheld by a Supreme Court decision in March, 1981 when the Court held that it did not violate a 15-year-old girl's right to privacy but rather furthered legitimate state interests that favored the family and were more important than the girl's privacy.

Virtually every state allows a minor to receive treatment for VD without parental knowledge and 34 states have laws that specifically protect doctors by saying they need not inform parents about VD care.

Thirty-five states likewise have laws that do not require doctors to inform parents about pregnancy care.

Q: Can a parent refuse lifesaving medical care for a minor child?

A: Parents do not have a right to refuse medical treatment for their minor child if the treatment is nonexperimental and appropriate, if denial of the treatment would result in death, and if the anticipated outcome of the treatment promises the child a chance for normal, healthy growth.

If the parents refuse to authorize treatment, this is grounds for state intervention on behalf of the child.

that these laws did not assure that the parents were acting in the child's best interest.

However, the decision did note that the hospital's medical staff must independently conclude that treatment is needed before admitting the child.

Q: Under what circumstances can parental rights be terminated?

A: The law differs from state to state. In general, a court may order a child taken away from his parents and turned over to a social welfare agency if this is considered to be in the best interest of the child.

Such action typically takes place if the court determines that a child under 18 years of age has been "permanently neglected" by his parents; that restrictive parenting practices have inhibited the future of the child, that is, providing parental care and an adequate, stable home commensurate with their financial condition.

Several states have struck down the concept of "in the best interest of the child" as too vague. Instead, they have spelled out the circumstances that are the basis for termination of parental rights, for example, when parents abandon the child, are disabled by alcohol or drug use, or are mentally ill.

Q: What are some of the legal questions that arise in a case of terminating parental rights?

A: Several difficult legal questions, are posed by this type of case that involve the balancing of fundamental and often conflicting rights. These are the rights of parents and their children to be free from unreasonable governmental interference in their family life, the right of natural parents to have the care and custody of their children, the right of children not to be neglected by their parents, and the right of the state to protect children who are not properly being cared for by their parents.

Bar associations plan local Law Day events

By EDGAR H. PEREZ

Hancock County Bar Association is sponsoring special programs for high school seniors Friday at the Courthouse in Bay St. Louis in observance of the national May 1-Law Day.

U.S. District Judge Walter J. Gex III will address seniors from Bay High, St. Stanislaus and Our Lady Academy on "Centennial of the U.S. Constitution" at 8:30 a.m. in the main courtroom.

Bay St. Louis attorney Michael Haas Jr., Law Day committee chairman for the Hancock Bar Association, said the seniors will also hear county officials discuss the current and future status of Hancock County.

Seniors at Hancock North Central High are unable to attend the program due to schedule conflict, Haas explained.

The Harrison County Bar Association has scheduled a Friday luncheon featuring Thomas A. Edmonds, dean of the University of Mississippi School of Law, as keynote speaker.

Members of the association are slated to make presentations in selected Harrison County schools.

A mock trial which is open to the public, "The Trial of Goldie Locks" will be presented by members of the association at 9 a.m. Thursday in the Circuit Court Annex Courtroom, Gulfport.

The trial is presented in an effort to advise the public of the problems faced by judges, juries and attorneys during the trial of criminal matters, according to Gulfport attorney William D. Bethea III, bar association spokesman.

Cosmetics - How to protect your skin from them

Q: I've heard that some ingredients in cosmetics can cause skin problems or allergic reactions. Which ingredients should I avoid?

A: Cosmetics are tested extensively by most companies before they're introduced to the market; therefore, relatively few products cause problems - except in some sensitive people.

One ingredient that has received some attention because of its skin sensitization or allergic effects in PABA (para-aminobenzoic acid), familiar to us as the chemical sunscreen in suntanning lotions.

PABA often is added to makeup base and lipstick because of the recent concern about the dangers of sun exposure. PABA also prevents the breakdown of the cosmetic itself.

Although it's convenient to have a sunscreen in makeup, PABA can cause a skin rash that looks like a sunburn.

If you suspect PABA irritation, the product label should be checked to find out which of the several formulations of PABA it contains.

Then, either a makeup with a different PABA formulation (a pharmacist can help with this) or one with a different sunscreen.

Arboretum special event set

The Crosby Arboretum will host its second annual membership party at 2 p.m. Saturday, May 16 at the Interpretive Center on Ridge Road at I-59, Piquette.

Felder Rushing, radio and television columnist and author of "Gardening Southern Style," will be featured speaker.

Entitled "Strawberries and Cream II," the special event will also include "Storytelling by Oldtimers," featuring remembrances of activities on the arboretum's land during prior periods of use.

Anyone who was associated with the old "Strawberry Farm" should contact the Arboretum office at 1801 Goodyear Boulevard, Piquette, MS 39446, phone 801-796-6961, to receive an official pass for the event.

Recently, the Interpretive Center was featured in "House and Garden" and "Progressive Architecture" magazines and on Mississippi Educational Television's "Mississippi Roads" program, and is receiving increased attention as a regional resource.

altogether should be used; or one should buy a makeup without sunscreen and find a separate sunscreen that is tolerable.

A second cosmetic product that has received attention lately is the glue used to apply artificial nails. Many dermatologists say they're seeing more and more patients with an inflammation in the nail area because of an increased use of fake nails - by both men and women.

If even slight irritations are experienced, the nails shouldn't be used. If the irritation remains or gets worse, it's best to see a dermatologist rather than to try and treat it one's self.

Perfumes and colognes can irritate your skin, as can the fragrances in lotions, makeup bases and lipstick. The fragrance problem is easier to avoid than it used to be, because several cosmetics companies now make "fragrance-free" product lines, which are relatively free of fragrances.

Other products that cause skin reactions in some individuals include eye shadow and other eye makeup, antiperspirants, hairsprays, and hair dyes. Formaldehyde, that ubiquitous substance found in many household products also may be found in cosmetics, and cause a number of different reactions, including eye irritations and headaches.

If sensitivity to an ingredient in cosmetics is suspected, the only way to determine which product is the culprit is by trial and error. If the condition persists no matter which product is used, a dermatologist may be able to help you find specific causes. Stress and environmental factors also can cause skin irritations.

Some so-called hypoallergenic makeup may actually contain potential irritants such as perservatives in the form of vitamin C and E. One who is sensitive to these makeup may want to contact the Asthma and Allergy Foundation of America in Washington, D.C. for a list of suggested cosmetics.

History moves to 17th century before it records hair washing and then it was soaped. In 18th century American pioneer women trusted their heads to soap made from used cooking greases and fireplace ashes. Today a person may spend $35-50 for a perm. But the first time they don't have time for the beauty salon, its hop to the drugstore and pick up the first bottle of shampoo they see. This is a no-no. There is a right shampoo for your hair problems as surely as there is a right person to make you happy. I can't guarantee that right person, but you might find him or her quicker with lovelier hair. I can select the right professional shampoo for you.

Dye seeking reelection as lieutenant governor

Lieutenant Governor Brad Dye has announced that he will seek reelection to the post which he has held for eight years.

Dye qualified to run as a Democrat Thursday and told a crowd of more than 800 supporters at a reception that evening that he was "doing what he had always intended to do."

"I feel that in the office of lieutenant governor I have been able to make some very progressive achievements to help the State of Mississippi and I feel that I can best continue my service to the state in this position," the lieutenant governor said.

"I am most proud of my efforts in helping get passed the Education Reform Act which has become a model for the nation and which has already begun to pay off as evidenced by improved test scores of our students," Dye said.

"I am also pleased with the innovative legislation which is helping our businesses and industry to be able to stay open and even expand."

"I pushed hard for the creation of the Institute for Technology Development which has already brought in high paying jobs to the state and which is spearheading the state's drive to win a $6 billion federal research project," he said.

Dye added that in addition to his duties as president of the Mississippi Senate, he has devoted much of his time to economic development. He has led numerous trade missions to Europe, Japan and Taiwan which have resulted in foreign investments in the state.

He is currently preparing to lead a two-week trade mission to Europe during May to follow up on previous contacts and seek new investors.

The lieutenant governor said that upon re-election, he will continue support of excellence in education at all levels, economic development, stronger law enforcement capabilities, and maintaining a balanced state budget.

"Creating jobs for Mississippians is my number one priority," he said.

"I am also pursuing the student drug testing program which I have proposed. We must do something to help the estimated 25 to 30 percent of the students who are using alcohol and drugs. I am advocating this drug testing program with its subsequent counseling and treatment for users as a complementary program to our drug education programs," he said.

Dye, a native of Charleston, received bachelor of business administration and law degrees from The University of Mississippi.

He worked as an attorney in Grenada before beginning his career in public service in the Mississippi House of Representatives.

He also served in the Mississippi Senate, as an attorney on the staff of the U.S. Senate Judiciary Committee in Washington, as commissioner on the Worker's Compensation Commission, as executive director of the Mississippi A & I Board, now presently the Board of Economic Development, and as state treasurer before being elected lieutenant governor in 1980.

He and his wife, Donna, have three sons and are members of Galloway Memorial United Methodist Church.

Corn and wheat sustain mild damage

MISSISSIPPI STATE—A late cold snap created problems for most state agricultural producers, but agriculture officials say corn and wheat crops got by with mild damage.

The state's 320,000-acre wheat crop had a few pockets of injured wheat, said Dr. Wayne Houston, an agronomist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

"Most of the damage occurred in north Mississippi and left plants 'drooping,'" Houston said. "This won't kill the plant and I expect most damaged plants to grow out of it."

State corn producers, stalled for weeks by rain and boggy fields, are getting back in the fields and planting should be completed close to schedule, according to Dr. Lamar Kimbrough, Extension agronomist.

"Producers who managed to plant before the freeze and had plants up did see some freeze damage," Kimbrough said. "Plant tops froze, but these will grow back."

Kimbrough added that so far this year, heavy rains and washed out fields have caused the most concern for corn producers.

Mississippi corn producers are expected to plant 230,000 acres of corn this year, 10 percent more than last year.

In related agricultural news, county Extension agents are still assessing the damage to crops caused by the recent freeze.

In Calhoun County in north Mississippi, Extension Agent Joe Goforth said prospects for a bumper fruit crop in the county were wiped out by the late freeze.

Marshall County Agent Ronald Jones said freezing temperatures destroyed the county's fruit crops and some early planted corn was damaged.

In south Mississippi, Clarke County Agent Bobby Fulcher said damage estimates on the county's peach and blueberry crop were running as high as 95 percent total loss.

Fulcher also said there was some damage to early planted corn.

Rankin County Agent Barney Tanner said most of the county's peach and plum crop will be lost again this year.

Jefferson County Agent Windell Carter said land preparations are getting underway again following cold and wet weather.

In spite of low prices

Soybean farmers try to improve profit

By Ralph J. Ballew
Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service

MISSISSIPPI STATE—Specialists at Mississippi State University are going all-out to help producers of the state's largest crop make ends meet in 1987.

With spring planting around the corner, officials are renewing efforts to bring profits to soybean growers. Soybeans are the state's largest planted crop, with 2.6 million acres seeded in 1986.

But acreage of the crop is expected to reach only about 2 million acres this year as farmers face an uphill battle with soybean profits.

Dr. Wayne Jordan, head of the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service Agronomy Department, said the main reason for low profits is a combination of high production costs, low yields and low prices.

"When you consider that the average per bushel cost of producing soybeans is more than $6 and the price is below $5, it's not hard to see why soybean farmers are discouraged."

Jordan and other Extension specialists are working to recommend practices farmers can follow to survive this year.

"The emphasis has to be on improving efficiency in growing soybeans," Jordan said. "Most Mississippi soybean farmers can make some changes that will improve their efficiency in production and harvesting."

Jordan said farmers need to look at ways to lower production costs without reducing yields and methods to increase yields without increasing costs.

"Each time a farmer reduces costs by $5 per acre, he reduces the per bushel costs by 20 cents," Jordan said.

dan said. "Each practice used to increase yield one bushel per acre also reduces the cost about 20 cents per bushel."

To help farmers make sure they cover all angles in cutting costs and boosting yields, Extension specialists have produced a 30-minute video tape outlining specific practices farmers can use.

The tape is available in VHS format, the format used in home video cassette recorders. The tapes are being made available to soybean growers in Mississippi free on a check-out basis. Growers can check out a copy at their local county Extension offices.

A publication accompanies the video tape. The publication goes into more detail on the production practices recommended for this year.

The sound track of the video tape is available on audio cassette for farmers to use in their trucks, automobiles or in their homes. The cassette also can be checked out free at the county Extension office.

For farmers who want to keep all the materials, the video cassette can be bought at cost for $7. The audio cassette costs $2.

Jordan said the goal is to put the materials in the hands of every soybean farmer in the state. The materials are available at county Extension offices beginning March 27.

Initially, 300 video cassettes in the VHS format, 200 audio cassettes and 15,000 publications will be produced in the effort. Eighty-two copies of the program will be produced in the Betamax format for use with video equipment in county Extension offices.

The project is possible by special funding from the Mississippi Soybean Promotion Board.

State representative seeks auditor's post

Ronnie Robertson of Greenwood Tuesday announced his candidacy for State Auditor.

A native of Greenwood, Robertson is completing his second term in the House of Representatives, where he represents the City of Greenwood.

He served in the House as vice chairman of the Public Health Committee and as a member of the Appropriations, Education and Public Utilities Committees.

"Working on the Appropriations Committee, I have become especially aware of the need to get the most for every tax dollar we collect, whether at the state or local level. I believe a state auditor with business and management experience can insure that tax dollars are spent carefully," said Robertson, a businessman.

Robertson, 33, also pledged to establish a liaison office for local governments within the auditor's office to help officials better understand laws affecting their purchasing and accounting practices.

"The auditor's office is one of the most important positions in state government. It certainly is the top office when it comes to public trust because the auditor is responsible for making sure that taxpayers receive a dollar's worth of service for every dollar they pay. This approach to government will help keep taxes down without jeopardizing services," Robertson said.

"The auditor must balance the responsibilities of assisting local and state officials in following the purchasing and recordkeeping laws without ever forgetting that the taxpayers deserve total accountability for their money. I pledge to do just that."

Robertson is a graduate of Delta State University, where he served as Student Body president.

He is married to the former Susan McRaney of Jackson, a public schoolteacher, and they have three children. He is a member of the First United Methodist Church in Greenwood.

Pass Christian product

Shrimp powder provides extra flavor

By Karen L. Moore
Cooperative Extension Service
Shrimp-lovers who can't always get the shrimp they want will soon be able to use a new flavor enhancer product to create the flavor they're missing.

The flavor enhancer is another entry in the state's growing specialty foods market. It is made from shrimp muscle and shell fragments boiled in salt water and dehydrated.

Nothing artificial is in it, according to its marketers Bob and Myra Padilla of Pass Christian.

It can be used in place of shrimp for any recipe calling for shrimp such as gumbo, soup, dip, jambalaya and stuffing. One cup is added to one gallon of the recipe being made. It can also be used for making a batter to fry vegetables, seafood, fish and hush puppies.

The product also could be used as an ingredient in other food products on the market.

"Even recipes with shrimp can benefit from the increased flavor of the flavor enhancer," Mrs. Padilla said.

Shrimp flavor enhancer is available in many countries but only on the west and east coasts in America but not elsewhere until now.

"The product is significant because the Padillas are the first to do this in Mississippi," said Dr. Gladden Brooks, a food technologist with the Food and Fiber Center of the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

The product may be expensive to people unfamiliar with it; however it costs less than foreign competitors'. A 4.5-ounce package (one cup) will cost about $3, which is one-third the cost of the same product in Europe, the Padillas said.

The Padillas market their products as French Market Seasoning Co. shrimp-flavor enhancer and bouillon seasoning. The flavor enhancer is 100 percent shrimp while the bouillon is 90 percent shrimp with 10 percent tic gum, a natural thickening agent.

Consumers interested in buying the products should look for them in specialty foods stores or contact the Padillas in Pass Christian.

The product also has great potential for institutional and restaurant use, in addition to home use, Brooks said.

The husband-and-wife team are optimistic about their product's success. They say it has been well received by the food industry, retailers and food technologists.

The Padillas' product comes from Louisiana in large, fragmented pieces of the shell and head and solid meat, Mr. Padilla said. They then use a high-speed commercial blender to pulverize the pieces down to a flour-type powder.

They got the idea for the flavor enhancer when they were in Mexico in 1966. The Mexicans used the flavor enhancer in a cruder, rougher form in soups.

The Padillas considered importing the Mexican product. When they checked into it they found the shrimp powder had a high bacteria count.

"It was within the acceptable limit but we still felt uncomfortable selling it," Mr. Padilla said. "So we decided to look for a safer source closer to home that would require less oversight."

To help them with the business aspect of their product, the Padillas used a variety of organizations, in addition to the MCEC Food and Fiber Center.

The Service Core of Retired Executives at the Small Business Administration in Gulfport helped them with accounting, incorporation and marketing.

The Small Business Development Center at Millsaps College provided help with developing export markets.

Dr. Cornell Ladner at the University of Southern Mississippi Bureau of Marine Resource and Bill Baker of the Mississippi Manufacturing Assistance Center in Jackson also helped the Padillas.

"We didn't know about any of these organizations except for SCORE until we started our business," Mr. Padilla said.

The Padillas said they learned a lot about how to start a business from their first business venture in 1982. Their oil field service company supplied electric wire line units to oil rigs. When the world oil business began to decline, they decided to get out before they lost money.

Taking it slow and learning everything possible were the things they learned from their first business venture.

"We learned that to be successful in business, we have to know as much as possible about everything such as accounting and law," Mr. Padilla said. "Even though we consult an attorney and an accountant, we still have to know about these things, too."

The Padillas are a team in every sense of the business.

"We share the responsibilities so we each will know everything about it when someone calls about it," Mrs. Padilla said.

Even their 18-year-old son is a part of the business.

"He knows what is appealing to people and has a good sales and aptitude," she said.

ever tasted chocolate-dipped strawberries? Delicious!

And, then, there's strawberry shortcake. I prefer the old-time biscuit kind - the light biscuits halfed and lavishly buttered while fresh from the oven, then, sweetened halved berries sandwiched between the halves, topped with more strawberries and cream poured over!

Others like sponge cake or pound cake for their strawberry base, and ice cream or whipped cream for the topping. Others prefer to heap the berries in a tart shell or pie shell. Any way you do it, it's delicious, isn't it?

The British, despite their reputation for not-so-gourmet food, have a way with strawberries, and some of our most delicious recipes for strawberries have come from the British Isles.

There's strawberry syllabub, an old-time favorite, a mixture of pureed fresh strawberries and whipped cream - not the "ersatz" version, please, for this. Here's:

STRAWBERRY SYLLABUB

1 cup strawberries, washed and hulled
3 Tbsp. sugar
½ tsp. fresh orange rind
2 cups heavy cream
1 cup sliced strawberries

Puree strawberries in blender, processor or food mill, or mash well by hand, to give approximately two thirds of a cup of pureed berries. Mix this with the sugar and orange rind in a bowl, then fold in the cream, whipped until stiff. Fold in the strawberry mixture and chill for several hours.

Then, ever so gently fold in the sliced berries, and spoon into your prettiest crystal or other clear serving dishes. (Six to eight servings.) (Copyright, 1967, Katharine D.M. Caire)

U.S. Attorney to deliver lecture

United States Attorney General Edwin Meese III has accepted the invitation of the University of Mississippi's School of Pharmacy to deliver its 14th annual Hartman Lecture at 4 p.m. Thursday, March 19, in Fulton Chapel.

Meese became the 75th U.S. attorney general on Feb. 25, 1985. From 1981 until 1985, he held the position of counselor to the President, functioning as the President's chief policy adviser, with management responsibility for the administration of the cabinet policy development, and planning and evaluation.

A 1963 graduate of Yale University, he holds a law degree from the University of California at Berkeley. Meese has served as a lawyer, educator and public official and has been a business executive in the aerospace and transportation industry. He recently retired as a colonel in the U.S. Army Reserve.

"The School of Pharmacy is honored to have a man of the distinction of Attorney General Edwin Meese III to recognize a person of the stature of Charles Hartman," said Dr. Wallace L. Guesz, dean of the Ole Miss pharmacy school.

Supervisors receive complaint about signs along Beach Road

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors is trying to find out whether they can take action to curb the number of signs along county roads, particularly Beach Boulevard.

The board heard a request Tuesday from Mark Mason, a Bay St. Louis businessman, that the number of signs along the beach be reduced.

Mason said he feels that the small signs scattered in various areas of the beach as well as along Highway 603 are a form of litter.

"It's pretty much just litter tacked to a tree," he explained.

He offered to donate labor from his firm, Mason Company Builders, to erect larger signs similar to those at highway exits, with each listing several businesses, if someone would donate the signs.

Board Attorney Gerald Gex, however, said he will have to find out exactly who can say whether signs should be allowed on the beach.

Mason said the city of Bay St. Louis has an ordinance regulating signs, but the signs in question are on county property.

According to Board President A.A. Kellar, the signs are on the right-of-way for beach road, but Gex said the city may have concurrent jurisdiction in the matter of signs.

The attorney said he would probably have an answer to the question of who has jurisdiction in time for Monday's board meeting.

Other questions presented to the board Tuesday concerned county employee insurance and a recreational pier project at Pearlton.

According to Chancery Clerk Michael Necaise, policies for county employee health and life insurance have continued to go up.

The board is also concerned because the county does not have Workman's Compensation and employees have not been covered on a 24-hour basis.

The board has been handling on-the-job accidents by using local and private legislation to allow the county to assist the injured employee with medical bills.

The most recent bill was one obtained for Charles L. Moran, who was injured on the job when a piece of wire went through a protective grill on a mowing machine and lodged in his neck, Gex said.

The board heard several presentations regarding 24-hour coverage and decided to stay with its current supplier, Fred Holmes and Associates.

Due to the increase in cost for the additional coverage, the board agreed to raise the county's share of the premium from $48 per employee per month to $60 per employee per month.

The Pearlton pier project, which will be located at the end of Monroe Street and built partially with grant money through Bureau of Marine Resources, also raised legal questions.

According to County Engineer Larry Seal, the apparent low bid is a joint bid of $63,545 from Treated Materials Inc. of Gulfport and Kostmyer and Associates of New Orleans, La.

Gex explained that the bid bond names both firms, but the proposal names only Treated Materials Inc.

Treated Materials is licensed in Mississippi but Kostmyer and Associates is not, the lawyer said.

He plans to check with an assistant state attorney general, Sam Keyes, to find out whether the joint bid can be accepted.

In other business Tuesday, the supervisors:

—Approved purchase of floor tile for the old Hancock County Jail, which is being renovated for Civil Defense;

—Approved a proposal by the Women, Infants and Children nutrition program, operated through the county health department, for a lease on a metal building behind Hancock General Hospital;

—Heard a report from Port and Harbor Director Harold Olsen on progress of an application for a Community Development Block Grant for economic development;

—Approved, contingent upon Seal's recommendations concerning where the pipeline should be located in proximity to roads, a sewerage easement for Waveland Regional Wastewater Management District; and —Voted four to one, with Beat Three Supervisor Roger Dale Ladner disagreeing, to insure the old Hancock General Hospital Building.

The board meets again at 9 a.m. Monday in the upstairs boardroom of the Hancock County Courthouse.

Denied

system of tenure or require that all decisions of nonreemployment be based upon cause with respect to employment in the school district.

Gex said he could not talk about any comments the judge made other than in his official statement.

Jones said the judge called the reason she was given for nonreemployment "stupid."

A letter she received from the board after her request for a reason in order to prepare for the hearing stated, "The reason for your nonreemployment is your failure to maintain adequate management of the Bay High School Band."

"Specifically, during a Mardi Gras parade held during the 1986-87 school year, the students under your management laid on the pavement and placed their instruments on the pavement; and when your students were preparing to play a piece of music, you stopped the students by loudly announcing to your band leader, 'Do these people look like they want to hear any music?'"

Jones stated that she remembers the incident differently. She said the band had already played in one parade that day and due to delays in that parade, had had only about 45 minutes for lunch and a bus ride to the starting point for the next parade.

"They were simply exhausted, so when they sat down during a break in the parade I did not make them get up until it was time to move again," she said.

"It was a four-and-one-half mile parade. I was concerned about the comfort of my students."

She also said she had received no verbal or written reprimands regarding the parade, which took place in early March.

"I do not feel the grounds they stated are severe enough to warrant nonreemployment and ruining my professional record," Jones added.

"I have to appeal the actions of the school board for my own integrity as well as for the security of all the teachers in the Bay St. Louis schools."

"I also have to set a model for my students by showing them that they must stand up for what they believe in. If I did not stand up for my own rights, I would not be fit to teach in a classroom."

She said when her hearing before the board is set, she plans to ask that it be public rather than in executive session.

The board tentatively has two other hearings set for 6 p.m. May 7.

Papal visit to New Orleans requiring elaborate planning

NEW ORLEANS—Pope John Paul II's visit to New Orleans in September might seem like an unprecedented event in the city's history to most people, but to Frank Walk the papal visit is seven separate events, each to be carefully planned and executed.

Walk, chairman of the papal visit's events committee, is responsible for the design and construction of any and all new facilities and the adaptation of existing structures to be used during the pope's visit.

Every stop or activity in which the pope is involved, excluding his return to the archbishop's residence adjacent to Notre Dame Seminary, qualifies as an "event," Walk said.

Walk listed the pope's seven event itinerary: arrival at New Orleans International Airport, St. Louis Cathedral prayer service, a slow parade along Canal Street, a talk at the Superdome to elementary and secondary educators, an address to a youth rally at the Superdome, an outdoor Mass at the University of New Orleans' east campus and a talk at Xavier University. There are also tentative plans for the pope to address his followers upon arrival at the archbishop's residence.

Plans to make each event go smoothly are massive, Walk said, and each event now has its own chairman and vice-chairman.

A great organizational help has been the overall ability of the event committee "to select and place capable business men and women as chairmen and vice-chairmen of each of those individual committees," Walk said.

Walk applauded the quality of the people involved with the committees. He and vice chairman Peter Quirk have met several times with each event chairperson.

"We transferred a tremendous amount of beginning information to them. Now they will be carrying the responsibility for their own events," Walk said.

While each event or activity will take the same amount of planning, the outdoor Mass at UNO is the focal point of the visit because of the tremendous numbers of people expected at this public function, Walk said.

"We're expecting as many as 350,000 people at the Mass," Walk said. "And we have to ensure their comfort and safety as well as the comfort and safety of the Holy Father."

The altar made for the outdoor Mass will be central to all arrangements made on the grounds, and the design has to incorporate input and requirements from many different groups.

"We have detailed requirements issued by the Vatican on functional details of the altar, based on their experience from other travels by the pope," Walk said. "Another element is the number of people - celebrants, altar servers, masters of ceremonies - who will have to be accommodated on the platform."

"We are working with the archdiocesan Office of Worship for their requirements for the altar so it is liturgically correct. We also have the climate to consider. We have to be prepared for sun, possibly rain, possibly heavy windstorms, because it is during the hurricane season.

"We also have to be aware of the general appearance of the altar, since it will be the focus of a lot of media attention while the Holy Father is saying the Mass."

"And we must be alert to the requirements of the U.S. Secret Service. After all, the pope is a visiting head of state and they will be responsible for his safety. We've been passing even the preliminary designs past the Secret Service to keep us aware of their restrictions," Walk said.

Producing a secure and comfortable environment for the crowd, as well as the pope, figures heavily in site preparation. During the summer preceding the visit, Walk said, it is expected work will begin on building the altar and doing other site improvements, such as roadways, fences and barricades.

The grounds at the east campus will be divided into sections to facilitate handling the crowd, Walk said.

"Each section will be defined by a low profile barricade. People will be ticketed to sections. If people arrive who have been ticketed in advance, they can go to the indicated section.

People without tickets will be given them at the gate," Walk said. "The tickets, which are free, are simply a form of crowd control to facilitate moving large groups of people around in a limited area."

Policies regarding how tickets to the outdoor Mass will be distributed are now being formulated. Once a policy is set, it will be widely disseminated through the news media.

Upon arrival at the UNO campus, the pope is anticipated to ride through the crowd in his popemobile, Walk said. "That involves a network of first class roadways for the popemobile to move on," he said.

And in planning the route the Holy Father will take through the crowd, "time and attention will be given to those people most remote from the altar," Walk said.

Planning of nearly a year for events that will encompass a little less than 36 hours has been both challenging and exhilarating, Walk said. The events committee is involved not just in facility design, but in all the details that go into making the event a memorable one, he said.

"We want everything to go right for the Holy Father," Walk said. "But we also want to make it pleasant, safe and memorable for the people who will be coming from all over to see him."

Rocks fall to D'Iberville in District Championship

The D'Iberville Warriors used two timely base hits in the top of the seventh inning to rally past the St. Stanislaus Rockchaws 5-3 in the District 4A Championship game Tuesday afternoon at the Rockchaw diamond.

David Conway was the winning pitcher, while Cedric Smith absorbed the loss for the Rockchaws.

SSC closed out a fine season, mostly with underclassmen starting, in posting a 19-1 overall record, and a 9-3 district mark. D'Iberville finished 11-9, with a 6-2 district slate.

The Rockchaws took a 1-4 lead in the bottom of the second inning as catcher William Scarborough hit a line drive over third base for a single. Two fielding and throwing errors by pitcher David Conway allowed Scarborough to advance around the bases.

D'Iberville came back in the top of the fourth inning to score two runs as first baseman David Crabtree left off with a single and went to second on a passed ball. An RBI single by Luke Swanzy scored Crabtree, and designated hitter Mario Martino was safe on a fielders choice. Martino scored when Corey Diaz singled up the middle. Smith then got Conway to fly out to Scott Heitzmann to end the inning with the Warriors leading 2-1.

In the bottom of the fourth inning, the Rocks knotted the score at Scott Heitzmann walked, and Bert Dean sacrificed him to second. A single to right field by Joe Welsh brought Heitzmann home. Cedric Smith followed with a single, but Jay Arziques deep drive to center field was caught by Chad Hebert to end the inning.

SSC had an excellent opportunity to break the game wide open in the bottom of the fifth inning as Conway walked Rocky Rhodes and Louis Schuff. William Scarborough's second single of the game up the middle scored Rhodes, as the Rocks had two runners aboard with only one out. Conway then struck out Heitzmann, and Bert Dean popped up to the pitcher to end the inning with the Rocks leading 3-2.

D'Iberville came back in the top of the sixth inning to score a run. Smith walked Martino and Troy Saucier. A ground ball by Diaz advanced Martino to third, who later scored to tie the score once again at 3-3.

The Rocks could not mount a rally in the bottom of the sixth as Conway settled down and retired the side in order.

Smith had to face the top of the Warrior lineup in the top of the seventh inning. Hebert reached first when Heitzmann could not handle a ground ball, and advanced on Larry Hardy's single. This set the stage for Kevin Fayard's well-placed double in the right centerfield gap, scoring both Hebert and Hardy. At this point, Coach Rod Herring brought in sophomore Tam Zant to pitch. Zant faced three batters and retired them in order to end D'Iberville's rally with the Warriors leading 5-3.

The Rocks did not give up. Shabazz walked, and after Rhodes and Schuff filed out, William Scarborough walked. With runners on first and second, Heitzmann hit the first pitch foul down the left field line. Two pitches later, a foul pop up was nicely handled by Saucier to end the game with the Warriors winning, 5-3.

Alcan Steamers win two

The Bays State Division Soccer Team beat the Lakeview Soccer Team in New Orleans by a score of 5-3, their highest goal output since tournament play began.

It was a team effort all around, beginning with good midfield control by the halfback line consisting of Joe Lee, Paul Montjoy and John Necaise.

The defense played tough, with Jimmy Hetsch and Chris Riggs in the center and Ronnie Peterson and Craig Adams on the outside.

They were able to keep some of the pressure off goalies Bart Brooks and Eddie Bourgeois who alternated in goal.

The revitalized scoring punch was provided by Shane Kowalski and Scott Demboski.

Shane assisted in three goals with his newly found crossing pass.

Scott Demboski took two of them at full stride for goals and John Necaise picked up the other after Bourgeois neutralized the goalie.

John Necaise alertly found the goal a second time off a beautiful corner kick by Joseph Lee to the far post.

Shane put in the fifth goal on a nice two-man play down the left side.

The Steamers play their final two games at home this Saturday and Sunday.

On Saturday they play a double header against Slidell, starting at 2:30 p.m.

Then on Sunday, they will play in a twin-bill starting at 2:30 p.m. with the Plantation Athletic Club from New Orleans and finishing at 4 p.m. in a rematch with Lakeview.

The Steamers are sponsored by McDonald Realty, Alcan Cable, Hancock Bank and Nationwide Insurance.

Over the many years I've been fishing, I often have found myself in a situation where I've asked, "Now how would a pro. handle this?" "Bassin' with the Pros" is a column that features professional bass fishermen providing the answers to many of the questions that I've asked, and I hope to many of your questions as well.

Before you hit the water for the first day of the new season, you should make sure your equipment is as ready for bass action as you are. Spring is the time of year that most anglers inspect their tackle—that is, if they inspect it at all. 'Tis the season to check over your rods, reels, line, lures and tackleboxes. With the costs of these items going up each year, proper maintenance can keep these tools productive for many, many years.

—Tackleboxes— Completely empty the boxes and sort the contents according to types of tackle. Once the box is empty, remove any rust left by the lures and any film residue. I use an old toothbrush and a mild dishsoap for this job. Rinse the box thoroughly, blot it dry, and then let it air dry. I complete the cleaning process with an inspection of the box's hardware—handles, latches, etc.

The curved-point hook is attacked with a rounded hone, which sharpens the two sides of the hook.

—Plugs— Polish your plugs with a damp cloth. Eliminate any rust on the hooks and put the original shape back into them with a needlenose pliers. Check the lips, hook hanger, propellers and lades.

—Spinnerbaits— Check all the metal parts for the slightest sign of rust. I touch up any lead heads that show chipping. I look at the skirts and replace those that have seen better days. I wash each lure with damp rag and wipe dry.

—Spinners— Check all the moving parts for that nasty rust and remove it wherever it occurs. Inspect the crevices and blades for effortless motion. Then, give the spinners

Attorney General J. Edgar Hoover has asked the National Marine Fisheries Service to remove a proposed regulation that will require shrimpers to use a Turtle Excluder Device when fishing in the inshore waters of the Gulf of Mexico.

The regulations, set to go into effect on July 1, require the device to be attached to each trawling net in the inshore or offshore waters of the Gulf.

Shrimpers estimate that use of the turtle excluder device (TED) will result in the loss of 10 to 20 percent of the shrimp catch.

Pittman chaired a meeting last week of representatives from the Pittman chaired a meeting last week of representatives from the eight states to discuss ways of delaying implementation of the regulation until further study of the effectiveness and the consequences of the device could be made.

Pittman said all the testing was done in Atlantic waters off the Carolina coast.

Mississippi and Louisiana, two of the states most affected by the regulation, never got a chance to participate in any of the experimentation or hearings.

After both states complained, hearings were held in March in Louisiana and Mississippi.

Thousands of protesting shrimpers attended both hearings.

Pittman drafted a statement which was sent from Mississippi the fisheries service. Copies of the statement were also sent to the other seven states, inviting them to join Mississippi in its request.

In addition to asking for the removal of the regulation as it applies to the inshore waters, the request asks that implementation of the regulation for deep water fish be delayed one year, until July 1988, to give the department more time to explore other alternatives to preserve the endangered species.

turtles without damaging the shrimp industry.

"We cannot overemphasize the importance of the shrimp industry to the state of Mississippi," the attorney general's statement said.

"While we recognize the threat of extinction to endangered species - we also resist a regulation which is unduly burdensome, overly oppressive, and not substantially supported by direct data."

Pittman said there has been no testing inshore to document the need for TEDs in shallow waters and no socioeconomic impact studies to show the effect of this regulation on the livelihood of the small shrimper, many of whom operate on a shoestring.

KEEPING FIT

All too often, the importance of fitness is learned too late — after a weight or health problem. It's never too soon to start thinking about becoming physically fit, and making it a priority in your life.

School athletic programs play a major role in actually teaching the importance of physical activity, but unfortunately, the setting is often too competitive. While some youths are motivated by competition, others are threatened by it, and because of a sense of insecurity or lack of ability, they avoid physical activity.

Children must learn at an early age that physical activity is natural and necessary to the good life. If eating properly, it should be taught and practiced within the family. According to the Rescoe Aerobic Information Bureau, family togetherness may be the greatest single motivating factor in a life of fitness. According to Dr. Paul Dymally, chairman of the Sports Medicine Committee of the American Academy of Pediatrics, "Fitness is something that can be learned from parents. His table manners at brushing your teeth." He believes that when the whole family does things together like walking and riding, it will pay.

Hancock students win at VICA state finals

The Pearl River Junior College, Hancock County Vocational-Technical Center was well represented at the State Finals of the Vocational Industrial Clubs of America (VICA) Contests which were held at the Jackson County Campus of the Mississippi Gulf Coast Junior College on March 30 thru April 1, 1967.

Members of the Hancock County Vo-Tech Center VICA Club won four state medals: one second place Silver Medal and three third place Bronze Medals.

Terry LaFrance, who earlier this year won first place in the district contest, won the third place Carpentry Award in the state contest. He is a senior at Bay High School and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester LaFrance of Waveland.

Greg May, who earlier won second place in the district contest, won third place in Job Demonstration at the state finals. He is a senior at Hancock North Central High School and is the son of Kenneth May of Lakeshore.

Gregory Laureys, who earlier won first place at the district contest, won third place in Extemporaneous Speaking at the state finals. He is a sophomore at Bay High School and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Greg Laureys of Bay St. Louis.

The display entered by the Hancock Vo-Tech Center VICA Club won the second place state award. The display was constructed by Doyle Bosarge, Jake Cospelich and Thomas Williams. All three students are juniors at Hancock North Central High School.

Doyle is the son of Mrs. James Bosarge of Lakeshore. Jake is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Ladner of Bay St. Louis, and Thomas is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Williams of Lakeshore.

There are five districts with approximately 100 total secondary level schools in Mississippi with VICA Clubs. First, second, and third place individual winners from each district contest advance to state finals.

TRUMAN SCHOLARSHIP SEMIFINALIST—George Paul of Bay St. Louis, a sophomore at Mississippi State University, was nominated for a 1967 Harry S. Truman Scholarship and named the alternate for Mississippi. Truman scholarships are awarded annually on the basis of merit to college sophomores who have demonstrated "outstanding potential for leadership in government or public service." To be considered, a student must be nominated by the college or university he attends. Paul is a political science major.

Space Station art deadline is May 4

NEW ORLEANS, La.—A Space Station art contest open to all Mississippi students between the ages of five and 18 is being sponsored by Martin Marietta Michoud Aerospace and the Louisiana Nature and Science Center.

The contest is divided into three categories: Elementary, five to nine years old; Junior, 10 to 14 years old; and Secondary, 15 to 18 years old.

All entries must be received by May 4 and should be sent to Space Station, P.O. Box 25617, New Orleans, La. 70119.

Each entry must have identification attached firmly to the back. The student's name, age, teacher's name, school, and school address must be typed out or printed legibly. Winners in each category will receive a framed Space Station photo autographed by astronauts, plus a $100 savings bond. The winning entries and selected other artwork will be displayed at the Louisiana Nature and Science Center in New Orleans.

Individual entries are welcome, but the job of the judges will be made easier if school teachers collect and submit artwork produced by students in their classes or schools. Entrants whose work is submitted in this manner will receive a certificate of recognition for participating.

Information about the contest is being mailed to public and private schools throughout the state. Winners will be announced May 11 and prizes will be awarded shortly thereafter.

Artwork submitted must be related to the Space Station: exterior views or what the student would imagine the interior quarters might look like. The sky is the limit, but all art must have a positive theme. No star wars or catastrophic themes will be considered for awards.

Artwork submitted must be no smaller than 3 inches by 10 inches and no larger than 11 inches by 14 inches. No clay or other models will be eligible. Acceptable media are crayon, pencil, ink, oils, charcoal, pastels, acrylics, poster paints, and water colors.

Winners will be selected by former astronaut Bob Overmyer, representatives of the Louisiana Nature and Sciences Center, and representatives of Martin Marietta.

Artwork will be judged on imagination, neatness and realism. The artwork submitted must be the original and completed only by the student submitting the work. The sponsors ask that students submit only one entry each. All artwork becomes the property of Martin Marietta and cannot be returned to the students.

Martin Marietta is competing for a NASA contract to design and build significant elements of the U.S. Space Station, including the astronauts' living and working quarters.

For further information about the contest, call Leslie McQuaig at (504) 454-7763.
